

I support NJ's do not call law 100%. There's nothing worse than trying to spend time with family, or being sick, or eating dinner, or just trying to relax after a hard day work and then getting an unsolicited call from someone who does not understand when you tell them you are not interested. So you have to rudely hand up the phone. Since I pay my phone bill, and my number is unlisted, I should have the option of choosing who is allowed to call my house.

Thank you.
